

NewsSerif

BUY NEWSANSREQUEST TRIAL FONTSinfo@character.type

20 STYLES

DESIGNED BY HENNING SKIBBE

PUBLISHED IN 2020

● NewsSerif is the sister typeface of NewsSans and is a challenge for more character in type. Together they are a wonderful toolbox for all editorial and typographic challenges – analogue or digital. ● The 20 styles of NewsSerif are divided into three subfamilies named after their suggested use: Text, Large and Huge. The letter style evolves throughout the different subfamilies to become more expressive and excessive in the Large and Huge families. ● All roman styles from the NewsSerif Text family are bundled with Italics from NewsSans. While this may appear to be an unusual pairing it makes a perfect match. The roman and italic weights are balanced perfectly.

● Character Type creates bespoke and retail typefaces for both small companies and large international brands. Henning Skibbe and his network are based in Hamburg, Germany.

● Henning Skibbe founded Character Type in 2018. He is a professional type and communication designer, typographic consultant, creative director and lecturer. Over the last decade he has created typefaces and extensive type families for prestigious brands such as Schwäbisch Hall, Süddeutsche Zeitung, OTTO, Medien-Union publishing house and the Australian supermarket chain Coles.

○ ○ ○ ○ ○
Dokumentation

Backgammmon

LaserSwords

Quickest!Hefe

Masquerade

BeautyHouse

Iowa, Ohio, Ill. San Francisco, CA
75.012¢ Mile House Oakland @48
North Platte River'65! Jonköping
Quadra Island: Wst. Kopenhagen
Elk Bay & 9,6$ Den Hague '37ers
Kwatna ® Peak CbR Post Falls ID.
#Frankfurt Oder St. Washington
Salt Lake City / USA 65 Hamburg

» Twitter «

BOLD
130 Pt

Wortklauberei, Täuschung

60 Pt

Face, Decomposed {Systemfehler}

48 Pt

Definition

BLACK
100 Pt

Vegan Dessert, Smallville 1976

60 Pt

Rückblickend 🖱️ ¿Nachgemacht?

48 Pt

Tokyo

REGULAR
130 Pt

Eigenschaften,
Radiowellen †

60 Pt

BASF Chemistry &
Fantasialand

48 Pt

Kappeln

MEDIUM
100 Pt

Mariä Himmelfahrt
@ St. Bartolomä

60 Pt

Greetings 058,91€
#Shipwreck

48 Pt

Zusatz

HAIRLINE
130 Pt

Hausaufgabenhilfe
Sonnenstern

60 Pt

Jerusalem Bazar
œ HTML #75,2

48 Pt

Wortspiele

LIGHT
100 Pt

Studentenfutter
02 — Quartz ♀

60 Pt

Mash-up, Lonely
↔ $123,45 ¥

48 Pt

REGULAR / ITALIC

8 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. On reaching the broad river Viliya, he stopped near a regiment of Polish Uhlans stationed by the river. statically, breaking their ranks and pressing against one another to see him. Napoleon looked up and down the river, dismounted, ...and sat down on a log that lay on the bank. At a

11 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, ... preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, ... galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. »Vivat!« shouted the Poles, ecstatically, breaking their ranks and

14 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the ➔ soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had ... occupied him from the time he joined the army. He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, ...

MEDIUM / ITALIC

8 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. On reaching the broad river Viliya, he stopped near a regiment of Polish Uhlans stationed by the river. statically, breaking their ranks and pressing against one another to see him. Napoleon looked up and down the river, dismounted, ...and sat down on a log that lay on the bank. At a mute

11 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, ... preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, ... galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. »Vivat!« shouted the Poles, ecstatically, breaking

14 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the ➔ soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had ... occupied him from the time he joined the army. He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, ...

BOLD / ITALIC
8 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. On reaching the broad river Viliya, he stopped near a regiment of Polish Uhlans stationed by the river. statically, breaking their ranks and pressing against one another to see him. Napoleon looked up and down the river, dismounted, ...and sat down on a log that lay

BLACK / ITALIC
8 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. On reaching the broad river Viliya, he stopped near a regiment of Polish Uhlans stationed by the river. statically, breaking their ranks and pressing against one another to see him. Napoleon looked up and down the

11 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, ... preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, ... galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops. »Vivat!« shouted the Poles,

11 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had occupied him from the time he joined the army. ➔ He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, turned sharply to the left, and galloped in the direction of Kóvno, ... preceded by enraptured, mounted chasseurs of the Guard who, breathless with delight, ... galloped ahead to clear a path for him through the troops.

14 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the ➔ soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had ... occupied him from the time he joined the army. He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, ...

14 Pt

On the thirteenth of June a rather small, thoroughbred Arab horse was brought to Napoleon. He mounted it and rode at a gallop to one of the bridges over the Niemen, deafened continually by incessant and rapturous acclamations which he evidently endured only because it was impossible to forbid the ➔ soldiers to express their love of him by such shouting, but the shouting which accompanied him everywhere disturbed him and distracted him from the military cares that had ... occupied him from the time he joined the army. He rode across one of the swaying pontoon bridges to the farther side, ...

DETAILS

BUY NEWSANS*Buy Fonts

You can license our fonts through myfonts.com or drop us a line and we will make you an offer.

REQUEST TRIAL FONTS*Trial Fonts

Get NewsSans trial fonts for risk free testing. These contain a limited set of glyphs: uppercase, lowercase and numerals.

info@character^{type}.comContact

Character Type
Am Born 17
22765 Hamburg, Germany
www.character^{type}.com

For more details please visit

<https://character^{type}.com/typefaces/newserif>

Copyright

Type Design © Character Type, Henning Skibbe, all rights reserved
Layout, Design: Character Type
Description text: Character Type,
Text samples pages 7 through 29 from »War and Peace« by Leo Tolstoy